Article 1. General Matters

~~§ 11140~~14000. Purpose of This ~~Division~~Subchapter.

(a) The purpose of this ~~Division subchapter~~ is to implement Article 9.5 of Chapter 1 of Part 1 of Division 3 of Title 2 of the Government Code, ~~Sections 11135 through 11139.5~~Sections 11135 through 11139.8, inclusive (hereinafter “the Act” or “Article 9.5”); ~~Section 11135 which provides, inter alia, that:~~

~~“No person in the State of California shall, on the basis of ethnic group identification, religion, age, sex, race, color, religion, ancestry, national origin, ethnic group identification, age, or physical or mental disability, physical disability, medical condition, genetic information, marital status, or sexual orientation, be unlawfully denied full and equal access to the benefits of, or be unlawfully subjected to discrimination under, any program or activity that is conducted, operated or administered by the state or any state agency, is funded directly by the state, or receives any financial assistance from the state. Notwithstanding section 11000, this section applies to the California State University.”~~

~~Article 9.5 requires the Secretary of the Health and Welfare Agency with the advice and concurrence of the Fair Employment Practice Commission (hereinafter referred to as the Fair Employment and Housing Commission or “FEHC” in accordance with the terms of the Governor’s Reorganization Plan Number 1 (1980)), to establish standards for determining which persons are protected by Article 9.5 and guidelines for determining what practices are discriminatory. This Division establishes such standards and guidelines.~~

~~(b) Article 9.5 also requires the Secretary of the Health and Welfare Agency, with the cooperation of the Fair Employment and Housing Commission, to assist State agencies in coordinating their programs and activities and consult with such agencies, as necessary, to ensure that consistent policies, practices and procedures are utilized by such agencies with respect to the enforcement of Article 9.5. This Division~~These rules, regulations, and standards are established establishes guidelines regarding such policies, practices and procedures in order to advance the objectives of Article 9.5 and this subchapter; to protect against unlawful discrimination and denial of full and equal access; to ensure that consistent practices are utilized by state agencies with respect to Article 9.5; to eliminate conflicting interpretations and standards of enforcement insofar as they afford less protection; and to increase efficiency and ensure that the ultimate beneficiaries of Article 9.5 have a clear understanding of their rights and the means by which to enforce them.

(c) All definitions and prohibitions set forth in other subchapters of Chapter 5 of Division 4 of Title 2 of the California Code of Regulations are hereby incorporated by reference. Acts or omissions that are violations of said prohibitions are also violations of this subchapter, and subject to the sanctions provided for in this subchapter, when the jurisdictional requirements of Article 9.5 are met. In the event of any conflict between the definitions and prohibitions of the provisions incorporated by this reference and the definitions and prohibitions set forth in this subchapter, the definitions and prohibitions set forth in this subchapter shall prevail.

(d) Article 9.5, this subchapter and other implementing regulations provide protections independent of those in federal anti-discrimination laws. Although federal laws provide the floor of protection relating to discrimination, Article 9.5, this subchapter and implementing regulations afford additional protections to provide robust protection of protected classes in state and state-supported programs and activities, including by recognizing that Article 9.5 of the Government Code prohibits discrimination independently of guarantees of equal protection and the prohibition against denial of full and equal access. The provisions of Article 9.5, this subchapter and other implementing regulations shall be construed liberally for the accomplishment of the purposes of this part.

(e) Article 9.5's prohibition against discrimination includes intersectional discrimination, discrimination on more than one basis, harassment, coercion, intimidation, and retaliation for exercising a protected right or refusing to engage in an act prohibited by Article 9.5.

(p) “Disability” means a physical or mental impairment that limits one or more major life activities of an individual, a record of such an impairment, or being regarded as having such an impairment. It includes any mental or physical disability as defined in this section, and shall be construed as follows:

(1) This subchapter provides protections that are independent from those in the federal Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (P.L. 101-3361) and the American with Disabilities Amendments Act of 2008 (P.L. 110-325) (collectively, “the ADA”), and may afford additional protections, but in no event shall be construed to provide fewer protections than the ADA. Notwithstanding the definitions of physical disability and mental disability in this section, if the definition of “disability” used in the ADA would result in broader protection of the civil rights of individuals with a mental disability or physical disability, or would include any medical condition not included within those definitions, then that broader protection or coverage shall be deemed incorporated by reference into, and shall prevail over conflicting provisions of, the definitions in this section.

(2) All definitions shall be interpreted in accordance with the expansive construction mandates of section 12926.1 of the Government Code. To the extent that codified definitions or interpretations are expanded in the future, such new, more expansive definitional mandates shall be incorporated into Article 9.5. To the extent that such codified definitions or interpretations are narrowed or restricted in the future, the more expansive definitions referenced in this sub-paragraph shall nevertheless continue to govern Article 9.5.

(3) “Mental disability” includes:

(A) having any mental or psychological disorder or condition, such as intellectual disability, organic brain syndrome, emotional or mental illness, or specific learning disabilities, that limits a major life activity;

(B) any other mental or psychological disorder or condition not described in paragraph (A) that requires special education or related services;

(C) having a diagnosis, record or history of a mental or psychological disorder or condition described in paragraph (A) or (B);

(D) being regarded or treated as having, or having had, any mental condition that makes achievement of a major life activity difficult; or

(E) being regarded or treated as having, or having had, a mental or psychological disorder or condition that has no present disabling effect, but that may become a mental disability as described in paragraph (A) or (B).

(4) “Physical Disability” includes:

(A) having any physiological disease, disorder, or condition, cosmetic disfigurement, or anatomical loss that affects one or more body systems (neurological, including immunological; musculoskeletal, special sense organs; respiratory, including speech organs; cardiovascular; reproductive; digestive; genitourinary; hemic and lymphatic, skin; and endocrine systems), and limits a major life activity;

(B) any other health impairment not described in subparagraph (A) that requires special education or related services;

(C) having a diagnosis, record or history of a disease, disorder, condition, cosmetic disfigurement, anatomical loss, or health impairment described in subparagraph (A) or (B) of this paragraph;

(D) being regarded or treated as having, or having had, any physical condition that makes achievement of a major life activity difficult; or

(E) being regarded or treated as having, or having had, a disease, disorder, condition, cosmetic disfigurement, anatomical loss, or health impairment that has no present disabling effect but may become a physical disability as described in immediately above in (A) or (B).

(B) has an impairment that limits major life activities only as a result of the attitudes of others toward such impairment; or

(C) does not have an impairment but is treated or perceived as having such an impairment.

(7) The definition of disability in this subchapter shall be construed in favor of broad coverage of individuals under this subchapter, to the maximum extent permitted by the terms of this subchapter. Disabilities include contagious diseases, noncontagious disease, orthopedic impairments, visual impairments, speech impairments, hearing impairments, traumatic brain injuries, cerebral palsy, epilepsy, muscular dystrophy, multiple sclerosis, cancer, heart disease, diabetes, intellectual disabilities, developmental disabilities, autism or autism spectrum, emotional illness, specific learning disabilities, HIV disease (whether symptomatic or asymptomatic), tuberculosis, drug addiction, and alcoholism.

(8) Individuals are protected from discrimination and denial of full and equal access due to an actual or perceived physical or mental impairment that is disabling, potentially disabling, or perceived or regarded as disabling or potentially disabling (even if it has no present disabling effect), including when an individual is erroneously or mistakenly believed to have any physical or mental condition that limits a major life activity, whether or not the impairment actually limits or is perceived to limit a major life activity.

(9) Physical and mental disabilities include chronic or episodic conditions, such as HIV/AIDS, hepatitis, epilepsy, seizure disorder, diabetes, clinical depression, bipolar disorder, multiple sclerosis, and heart disease. An impairment that is episodic or in remission is a disability if it would limit a major life activity when active.

(10) The definitions of “physical disability” and “mental disability” require a “limitation” upon a major life activity, but do not require, as does the ADA, a “substantial limitation.” This distinction is intended to result in broader coverage under this subchapter than under the ADA.

(11) “Major life activities” shall be broadly construed and include physical, mental, and social activities; caring for one’s self; performing manual tasks, walking, seeing, hearing, speaking, breathing, eating, sleeping, standing, lifting, bending, learning, reading, concentrating, thinking, communicating, and working. Working is a major life activity, regardless of whether the actual or perceived working limitation implicates a particular employment or a class or broad range of employment.

(12) For purposes of subparagraph (6), a major life activity also includes the operation of a major bodily function, including functions of the immune system, normal cell growth, digestive, bowel, bladder, cardiovascular, genitourinary, hemic, neurological, lymphatic, brain, respiratory (including speech organs), circulatory, endocrine, and reproductive functions.

(13) A disability limits a major life activity if it makes the achievement of the major life activity difficult.

(14) An impairment that limits one major life activity need not limit other major life activities in order to be considered a disability.

(15) The determination of whether an impairment limits a major life activity shall be made without regard to the ameliorative effects of mitigating measures, unless the mitigating measure itself limits a major life activity, regardless of federal law under the ADA. Mitigating measures include:

(A) medication, medical supplies, equipment, or appliances, low-vision devices (which do not include ordinary eyeglasses or contact lenses), prosthetics including limbs and devices, hearing aids and cochlear implants or other implantable hearing devices, mobility devices, or oxygen therapy equipment and supplies;

(B) use of assistive technology devices and assistive technology services;

(C) reasonable accommodations or auxiliary aids or services; or

(D) learned behavioral or adaptive neurological modifications.

(16) The ameliorative effects of the mitigating measures of ordinary eyeglasses or contact lenses shall be considered in determining whether an impairment limits a major life activity. As used in this subparagraph:

(A) the term “ordinary eyeglasses or contact lenses” means lenses that are intended to fully correct visual acuity or eliminate refractive error; and

(B) the term “low-vision devices” means devices that magnify, enhance, or otherwise augment a visual image.

(17) “Disability” does not include sexual behavior disorders, compulsive gambling, kleptomania, pyromania, or psychoactive substance use disorders resulting from the current unlawful use of controlled substances or other drugs. “Sexual behavior disorders” means pedophilia, exhibitionism, and voyeurism.

(18) “Current unlawful use of controlled substance or drugs” does not include an individual who:

(A) has successfully completed a supervised drug rehabilitation program and is no longer engaging in the illegal use of drugs, or has otherwise been rehabilitated and is no longer engaging in such use;

(C) is erroneously regarded as engaging in such use; or

(D) is using drugs taken under the supervision of a licensed health care professional, or other uses authorized by law.

(q) “Ethnic group identification” means the actual or self-identified possession of the physical, cultural or linguistic characteristics associated with a racial, cultural, or ethnic group or country, geographical place of origin, or the status of being a descendent of someone with such actual or self-identified characteristics, or the perception of a person’s ethnic group identification. “Ethnic Group Identification” includes ancestry, color, national origin, and race.

(r) “Facility” means all or any portion of buildings, structures, sites, complexes, vehicles, equipment, rolling stock or other conveyances, vessels, roads, walks, passageways, parking lots, or other real or personal property, or interests in such property, such as a life estate, including the site where the building, property, structure or equipment is located, and information systems and electronic technology, including mobile and tablet-based technology and newly developed forms of electronic information systems and technology as they become available.-

§ 14027. Standards for Determining Discrimination and Unlawful Denial of Full and Equal Access.

(a) In order to determine whether a practice is discriminatory or unlawfully denies full and equal access, all sources of information may be used, including the sources of information and methods used by state and federal courts and agencies in determining whether a practice is discriminatory or denies full and equal access. The sources of information and methods used by federal courts and agencies shall be considered a floor and not a ceiling, consistent with the objective of Article 9.5 and this subchapter to provide the broadest protections for civil rights.

(b) Practices prohibited by Article 9.5 and this subchapter include facial discrimination, intentional discrimination, disparate impact discrimination, and denial of full and equal access.

(1) Facial discrimination, sometimes referred to express discrimination, is unlawful per se under Article 9.5, this subchapter, and other implementing regulations. Such discrimination includes and practices that classify individuals and provide them aid, benefits, or services on the basis of their inclusion or exclusion from a protected class, except to the extent they lawfully benefit members of a protected class, such as by being part of a lawful affirmative action plan.

(2) Practices that intentionally discriminate against individuals on the basis of membership in a protected class are prohibited under Article 9.5, this subchapter, and other implementing regulations. Intentional discrimination is established when a protected basis is a motivating factor in taking an adverse action even though other factors may have also motivated the practice. Intentional discrimination may be proved by direct or circumstantial evidence. “Intentional” discrimination includes “purposeful” discrimination.

(3) Disparate impact discrimination is prohibited under Article 9.5, this subchapter, and other implementing regulations. “Disparate impact,” “discriminatory effect,” and “adverse impact” are used interchangeably. Disparate impact occurs when a facially neutral act or practice, regardless of intent, a) has an adverse or disproportionate impact, or predictably results in an adverse or disproportionate impact, on members of a protected class; (b) creates, increases, reinforces, or perpetuates discrimination or segregation of members of a protected class; or (c) has the effect of violating any of the other prohibitions in Article 9.5, this subchapter, or other implementing regulations. A practice with a disparate impact may nevertheless still be lawful if supported by a legally sufficient justification, as set out in section 14029.

Note: Authority cited: Section 12935(a), Government Code. Reference: Sections 11135, 12926, 12926.1, 12940, 12955, and 12955.8, Government Code.

§ 14028. Types of Evidence and Proof in Intentional Discrimination Cases.

(a) Admissions, expressions of bias, or other direct evidence of discrimination often are probative of purpose or intent, but are not necessary to demonstrate that a practice is intentional discrimination.

(b) Circumstantial evidence may be relied upon to demonstrate intentional discrimination.

(1) Probative sources of information or methods for determining whether discrimination has occurred include: information concerning the disproportionate or adverse effect of a practice on a protected class or decisions on comparable matters; the historical background of the challenged practice; specific antecedent events leading to the challenged practice; departures from normal procedures or substantive conclusions; contemporary statements of decision-makers and other legislative or administrative history; a pattern of harm to the protected classes; information showing discrimination against members of a protected class based on statistical data that the practice has a disproportionate or adverse effect on members of the protected class and supporting anecdotal evidence; and the use of presumptions, burden shifting, and comparisons between a protected class and other individuals.

(2) Statistical data is one form of circumstantial evidence, but statistical evidence is not necessary to demonstrate that a program or activity constitutes intentional discrimination.

(3) Evidence of disparate impact discrimination, such as that set forth below in section 14029(a), may also be circumstantial evidence of intentional discrimination.

(4) Proof regarding different treatment of similarly situated persons is one way of raising an inference of intentional discrimination, but such proof is not the only way required to make a showing of intentional discrimination.

(c) Burdens of Proof in Intentional Discrimination Cases Based on Circumstantial Evidence

(1) A complainant, plaintiff, or petitioner first has the burden of establishing a prima facie case of discrimination by showing that the aggrieved individual or individuals: (A) belong to a protected class; (B) were subject to adverse action; and (C) a causal connection or link exists between the individual's or individuals' protected class and the adverse action. A prima facie case establishes a rebuttable presumption of discrimination.

(2) If the complainant, plaintiff, or petitioner satisfies the burden of proof set forth in paragraph (c)(1) of this subsection, the respondent or defendant must then demonstrate a legitimate, non-discriminatory reason for the adverse action.

(3) If the respondent or defendant satisfies the burden of proof set forth in paragraph (c)(2) of this subsection, the burden shifts back to the complainant, plaintiff, or petitioner to demonstrate that the non-discriminatory reason(s) asserted by the respondent are pretextual or are false.

Note: Authority cited: Section 12935(a), Government Code. Reference: Sections 11135, 12926, 12926.1, 12940, 12955, and 12955.8, Government Code.

§ 14029. Types of Evidence and Proof in Disparate Impact Discrimination Cases.

(a) Evidence of disparate impact may include statistical or other evidence that:

(1) a group of individuals, other than members of a protected class, receive better or more effective benefits of the program or activity than members of a protected class, or that the same benefits are more burdensome to obtain for members of a protected class;

(2) the benefits of the program were reduced, less effective, or more burdensome to obtain when members of a protected class were eligible for, or participated in, a program or activity to a greater extent than in the past;

(3) the program or activity creates, increases, reinforces, or perpetuates segregation on the basis of membership in a protected class;

(4) a particular condition to receiving benefits of the program disproportionately excludes individuals on the basis of membership in a protected class from participation in or receipt of the benefits of the program; or

(5) the objectives of the program or activity were defeated or substantially impaired for members of a protected class.

(b) Burdens of Proof in Disparate Impact Discrimination Cases.

(1) The complainant, plaintiff, or petitioner must show that the practice they are challenging has a disparate impact. This means that, in a legal proceeding, the complainant, plaintiff, or petitioner has the burden of proving that an action, practice or practices caused or predictably will cause a disparate impact.

(2) If the complainant, plaintiff, or petitioner shows that the challenged practice has a disparate impact, the respondent can avoid liability by showing that the practice is justified despite the disparate impact. In a legal proceeding, this means that once the complainant, plaintiff, or petitioner satisfies the burden of proof set forth in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the burden shifts to the respondent to prove that the challenged practice meets the elements of a legally sufficient justification under subsection (c) in this section.

(3) If the respondent satisfies the burden of proof set forth in paragraph (2) of this subsection, the complainant, plaintiff, or petitioner may still prevail by proving that the purpose for the challenged action or practice can be equally served by an action or practice that has a less discriminatory effect.

(c) Legally Sufficient Justification.

(1) A legally sufficient justification exists when the respondent proves that the action or practice is necessary to achieve a substantial, legitimate, and nondiscriminatory purpose sufficiently compelling to override the disparate impact, and that the action or practice effectively carries out the purpose it is alleged to serve.

(2) A legally sufficient justification must be supported by evidence and may not be hypothetical or speculative.

§ 14030. Other Proof Provisions.

(a) A legally sufficient justification, as described in subsection 14029(c), is not a defense against a claim of intentional discrimination.

(b) The same information may be probative of more than one form of discrimination.

(c) The evidence and methods of proof described in this Article shall be construed as illustrative and not as limitations on the enforcement of Article 9.5, this subchapter, or other implementing regulations.

Article 4. Remedial Actions

§ 14050. Administrative Complaints and Judicial Private Right of Action.

(a) Any aggrieved person or state agency may file an administrative complaint with the Department regarding any alleged violation of Article 9.5, this subchapter or other implementing regulations.

(b) Article 9.5 and this subchapter may be enforced by a civil action in federal or state court for equitable or declaratory relief, including actions for declaratory relief, injunctive relief, writ of mandamus, mandatory relief, and cessation or suspension of state support, which shall be independent of any other rights and remedies, including any action taken by a covered entity under sections 11136 and 11137 of the Government Code.

(c) A prevailing plaintiff or petitioner in a civil action shall be entitled to costs, expenses, reasonable attorneys' fees, and expert witness fees. A prevailing defendant or respondent in a civil action may recover costs and reasonable attorneys' fees only under legal standards governing recovery of fees and costs in actions that are frivolous or objectively without foundation.

§ 14051. Exhaustion of Administrative Remedies.

(a) Exhaustion of administrative remedies available for employment claims under the Fair Employment and Housing Act, Government Code section 12900 et seq. shall not be a prerequisite to the bringing of actions for judicial enforcement of Article 9.5, this subchapter or other implementing regulations, nor shall any person first be required to exhaust administrative remedies of any other state or federal agency or the internal grievance procedures of any recipient, or comply with the Government Claims Act, Gov. Code sections 900 et seq., before filing an intake form or a complaint with the Department or a civil action for enforcement of Article 9.5.

(b) Where an underlying administrative proceeding has occurred, the civil action or Department investigation of violations of Article 9.5, this subchapter, and implementing regulations shall not be limited to a review of the administrative record even if the civil suit includes several causes of action, some of which may be subject to a review of an administrative record requirement. A civil action shall proceed by trial de novo.

(c) In a civil action, to the extent an aggrieved person alleges employment discrimination in violation of the Fair Employment and Housing Act, Government Code sections 12000 et seq. as a separate claim in addition to a violation of Article 9.5, the person must exhaust administrative remedies for those separate claims as required by Government Code section 12960 and implementing regulations.

(d) If an aggrieved person chooses to seek resolution of a claim under Article 9.5, this subchapter, or other implementing regulations through a state or state agency administrative procedure or internal agency grievance procedure other than through the Department, or if a complaint is referred to an agency for investigation pursuant to section 14052(b), the one-year deadline for filing a complaint with the Department under Government Code 12960 shall be tolled for the pendency of the investigation.

§ ~~14052~~11157. Mandatory Remedial Action.

~~(a) If the responsible State agency finds a recipient has violated this Division or other implementing regulations the recipient shall take such remedial action as the responsible State agency deems necessary to overcome the effects of such violation.~~

(a) Whenever a state agency has reasonable cause to believe that a covered entity or entities have violated the Fair Employment and Housing Act, Government Code section 12900 et seq., Civil Code section 51, 51.5, 51.7, 54, 54.1 or 54.2, Article 9.5, this subchapter, or other implementing regulations, the head of the state agency, or their designee, shall notify the covered entity or entities of such violation and shall submit a complaint detailing the alleged violations to the Department for investigation and determination according to Government Code 11136.

(b) The Department retains discretion to refer complaints concerning violations to, or back to, the state agency responsible for the program or activity for investigation and possible resolution. Nothing in this subsection shall preclude an aggrieved person from proceeding under section 14050 (Private Right of Action).

(c) If a recipient or recipients are found to have violated the Fair Employment and Housing Act, Government Code section 12900 et seq., Civil Code section 51, 51.5, 51.7, 54, 54.1 or 54.2, the Act, this subchapter or other implementing regulations, the state or responsible state agency that administers the program or activity involved, in addition to remedies provided by other laws and actions directed by a Court, shall take one or more of the following actions:

(1) termination of all or part of the recipient's state support;

(2) suspension of all or part of the recipient's state support;

(3) debarment from, or otherwise making the recipient ineligible for, future state support for a specified period of time or until specified remedial actions are taken by the recipient;

(4) probationary eligibility for future state support, or making future state support conditional upon compliance with specified conditions; or

(5) placing conditions upon the continuation of present state support.

~~(d)~~ Where a recipient is found to have violated this Division the Fair Employment and Housing Act, Government Code section 12900 et seq., Civil Code section 51, 51.5, 51.7, 54, 54.1 or 54.2, Article 9.5, this subchapter, or other implementing regulations, and where another recipient exercises control over such recipient, either or both recipients shall be required to take such remedial action as deemed appropriate by the state or responsible state agency or a court.

Note: Authority cited: Section 12935(a), Government Code. Reference: Sections 11135, 11136, 11137 and 11139, Government Code.

~~§ 11158.~~ § 14053. Permissive Remedial Action.

(a) A State agency may, where necessary to overcome the effects of discrimination in violation of Fair Employment and Housing Act, Government Code section 12900 et seq., Civil Code section 51, 51.5, 51.7, 54, 54.1 or 54.2, or discrimination or denial of full and equal access under Article 9.5, this ~~Division~~subchapter or other implementing regulations:

(1) require a recipient to take remedial action with respect to persons who are no longer participants in the recipient's program or activity, but who were participants in the program when such discrimination occurred; and

(2) require a recipient to take remedial action with respect to persons who would have been participants in the program or activity, had the discrimination not occurred.

(b) If a recipient or recipients are found to have violated Fair Employment and Housing Act, Government Code section 12900 et seq., Civil Code section 51, 51.5, 51.7, 54, 54.1 or 54.2, the Act, this subchapter, or other implementing regulations, the state or responsible state agency may also take such remedial actions as the state or responsible state agency deems appropriate to address such violation and the effect of such violation, including requiring provision of benefits, prohibiting discriminatory conduct, or referral of the case to the Attorney General's Office or other appropriate law enforcement entities for any judicial relief at law or equity, including specific performance of agreements between the state or state agency and the recipient or recipients, enforcement of the requirements of the Act, this subchapter, and implementing regulations, and enforcement of other applicable nondiscrimination laws.

(c) Nothing in this section precludes the state or responsible state agency from taking such remedial actions during the pendency of the investigation or complaint as the state or responsible state agency deems appropriate to address an alleged violation and the effect of any such alleged violation.

~~(d)~~ Even in the absence of a finding of discrimination or denial of full and equal access, a recipient may be permitted by the state or a State agency to take voluntary steps in addition to any action that is required by Article 9.5, this ~~Division~~subchapter or other implementing regulations to overcome the effects of conditions that resulted in limited participation in the recipient's program or activity by ~~persons of a particular ethnic group identification, religion, age, sex, color, or with a physical or mental disability~~ individuals in a protected class.

Article 5. Harassment, Coercion, Intimidation, and Retaliation

§ 14070. Harassment Prohibited

(a) Harassment by a covered entity, related to any program or activity, on any protected basis is an unlawful practice under Article 9.5.

(b) Harassment includes quid pro quo harassment and hostile environment harassment. The same conduct may constitute both quid pro quo and hostile environment harassment.

(1) Quid pro quo harassment. Quid pro quo harassment refers to an unwelcome request or demand to engage in conduct where submission to the request or demand, either explicitly or implicitly, is made a condition related to the attainment of any benefit, as defined in section 14020 of this subchapter. An unwelcome request or demand may constitute quid pro quo harassment even if an individual acquiesces in the unwelcome request or demand.

(2) Hostile environment harassment. Hostile environment harassment refers to unwelcome conduct that interferes with or prevents the attainment of any benefit, as defined in section 14020 of this subchapter, constitutes any kind of adverse action, or creates a hostile, offensive, oppressive, or intimidating environment. Hostile environment harassment does not require a change in the terms, conditions, or privileges afforded by Article 9.5.

(A) Whether hostile environment harassment existed or exists depends on the totality of the circumstances.

(i) Factors to be considered in determining whether hostile environment harassment existed or exist include: the nature of the conduct; the context in which the incident(s) occurred; the severity scope, frequency, duration, and location of the conduct; and the relationship of the persons involved.

(ii) Neither psychological nor physical harm must be demonstrated to prove that a hostile environment existed or exists. However, evidence of psychological or physical harm may be relevant in determining whether a hostile environment exists or existed, and the amount of damages to which an aggrieved person may be entitled.

(iii) Whether unwelcome conduct created a hostile environment is viewed from the perspective of a reasonable person in the aggrieved person's position.

(3) Types of conduct. Quid pro quo and hostile environment harassment may be written, verbal, or communicated in other ways, and do not require physical contact. Such harassment includes:

(A) verbal harassment, including epithets, derogatory comments or slurs;

(B) physical harassment directed at an individual, including assault, impeding or blocking movement, or any physical interference with normal movement;

(C) visual forms of harassment, including derogatory posters, cartoons, drawings, or other documents.

(D) unwelcome sexual conduct, or other unwelcome conduct, which need not be based on sexual desire, linked to an individual's sexual orientation or sex, including: pregnancy or medical conditions related to pregnancy, childbirth or medical conditions related to childbirth, breastfeeding or medical conditions related to breastfeeding; gender identity; and gender expression;

(E) any coercion, intimidation, threats, or interference with a person's exercise or enjoyment of any benefit secured by rights protected under the Act, this subchapter, or implementing regulations.

(F) taking any adverse action against a person in a manner that constitutes quid pro quo or hostile environment harassment, such as, representing to a person that a benefit is not available because of the person's response to a request or demand for a sexual favor;

(G) revealing private information to a third party about a person, without their consent, in a manner that constitutes quid pro quo or hostile environment harassment, unless such disclosure is required by federal or state law; or

(H) subjecting a person to a discriminatory practice under Article 9.5 may, itself, constitute quid pro quo or hostile environment harassment.

(c) A single incident of harassment based on an individual's membership in a protected class may be sufficient to constitute hostile environment harassment or quid pro quo harassment under Article 9.5.

(d) The fact that an alleged perpetrator may be a member of the same protected class as the aggrieved person is not by itself a defense to a claim of harassment.

(e) A covered entity shall be liable for harassment of an ultimate beneficiary by a third party if the covered entity knows or should have known of the conduct and fails to take immediate and appropriate corrective action.

(f) Persons protected. The prohibition on harassment extends to conduct that is based on an individual's membership in a protected class, being perceived as a member of a protected class, being associated with a member of a protected class or someone who is perceived to be a member of a protected class, or on account of having aided or encouraged any person in the exercise of the rights protected by Article 9.5.

Note: Authority cited: Section 12935(a), Government Code. Reference: Sections 11135, 12926, 12926.1, 12940, 12955, Government Code.

§ 14071. Retaliation Generally.

(a) It shall be unlawful for any covered entity to take adverse action against an aggrieved person because the person has engaged in protected activity.

(1) "Because of" means that the retaliation was a motivating factor in causing harm. Retaliation need not be the sole motivating factor.

(2) The adverse action need not be related directly to the nature of the protected activity.

(3) Retaliation may be established by direct evidence or circumstantial evidence, including the temporal proximity between the protected activity and the adverse action.

(b) Proof in Retaliation Cases

(1) To establish a prima facie case of retaliation, an aggrieved person or the Department must show that:

(A) the aggrieved person engaged in a protected activity;

(B) the respondent subjected the aggrieved person to an adverse action; and

(C) a causal connection or link exists between the protected activity and the adverse action.

(2) If an aggrieved person or the Department establishes a prima facie case, the respondent must then establish a legitimate non-retaliatory reason for the adverse action, whereupon the burden shifts back to the aggrieved person or the Department to demonstrate that the proffered reason is pretextual or false.

(c) Persons Protected. For purposes of a retaliation claim, an aggrieved person includes any person who has alleged that they have been subjected to adverse action due to engagement in a protected activity.

(1) A person does not have to be a member of a protected class in order to assert a claim for retaliation.

(2) A person does not need to allege or prove discrimination or denial of full and equal access, or prevail on a separate claim under any provision of the Act or these regulations, in order to assert a claim for retaliation.

(3) An aggrieved person may prevail on a retaliation claim even if:

(A) the aggrieved person was engaged in a protected activity challenging practices which the aggrieved person reasonably believed to be unlawful, whether or not those practices are determined to be unlawful, or

(B) the aggrieved person was participating in an activity which was perceived by the respondent as protected activity, whether or not it was so intended by the aggrieved person.

(d) "Protected activity" includes:

(1) making a complaint, testifying, assisting or participating in any manner in a proceeding, including any proceeding under Article 9.5, the California Fair Employment and Housing Act, California Civil Code section 51, 51.5, 51.7, 54 54.1, or 54.2, the federal Fair Housing Act, the Americans with Disabilities Act, the federal Civil Rights Act, section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act, or any other state or federal civil right statutes;

(2) opposing practices prohibited by the Act, this subchapter, other implementing regulations, the California Fair Employment and Housing Act, California Civil Code section 51, 51.5, 51.7, 54 54.1, or 54.2, the federal Fair Housing Act, the Americans with Disabilities Act, the federal Civil Rights Act, or section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act, including seeking the advice of the state, any state or local agency, the Department or Council, or a person employed or retained by a recipient who has authority to receive, transmit, investigate, or discover a complaint, or correct an alleged violation, whether or not a complaint is filed, and if a complaint is filed, whether or not the complaint is found to have merit;

(3) assisting or advising any person in seeking the advice of the state, any state or local agency, the Department or Council, or a person employed or retained by a recipient who has authority to receive, transmit, investigate, or discover a complaint, or correct an alleged violation, whether or not a complaint is filed, and if a complaint is filed, whether or not the complaint is found to have merit;

(4) participating in an activity that is perceived by the state, any state or local agency, or a recipient as opposition to discrimination or denial of full and equal access, whether or not so intended by the individual participating in the activity;

(5) contacting, communicating with or participating in a proceeding of a human rights or civil rights agency regarding discrimination or denial of full and equal access on a basis enumerated in Article 9.5, this Division or other implementing regulations;

(6) assisting with or participating in the proceedings of the state, any state agency, or a recipient including involvement as a potential witness, which the state, any state or local agency, or a recipient perceives as participation in a proceeding alleging a violation of Article 9.5, this Division or implementing regulations;

(7) seeking information, formally under a Public Records Act request, or informally, regarding programs or activities of a state, any state agency, or a recipient; or

(8) requesting a reasonable accommodation or reasonable modification for an individual with a disability, or requesting an interactive process meeting, whether or not the request was granted.

(e) Violations of this section are considered a discriminatory practice as set forth in Article 9.5, this subchapter, and other implementing regulations, and subject to remedial actions described in Article 4, supra.

Article 7. Specific Practices Prohibited - Ancestry, Ethnic Group Identification, and National Origin

§ 14100. Definitions.

(a) The terms “ancestry,” “ethnic group identification,” and “national origin” shall have the meanings set out in sections 14020 (e), (q), and (dd), respectively.

(b) “Alternative communication services” means the method used for purposes of communicating effectively with a person with limited English proficiency who is unable to read or speak or write in the English language. “Alternative communication services” include, but are not limited to, the provision of the services of a multilingual employee or a qualified interpreter for the benefit of an ultimate beneficiary; the provision of written materials in a language other than English; the provision of written materials in a format other than standard font written print, such as Braille, large font print, sign language visual formats and electronic formats; auxiliary aids and services; and notice to the limited English proficient person of the availability of free alternative communication services, including interpreter and translation services and where to file complaints if appropriate services are not provided.

(c) “Multilingual employee” means a qualified employee of a covered entity who, in addition to their duties, is also proficient in oral communication skills in English and the target languages, as are necessary to accurately and readily interpret in a second language. A multilingual employee need not be proficient in reading or writing skills in a second language except where such skills are a job-related necessity or necessary for orally interpreting a written document.

(d) “Limited English proficient persons” (“LEP”) includes persons who are non-English speaking or who do not speak English as their primary language or have limited ability to read, write, speak, or understand English.

(e) “Primary language” means the language used most frequently by a person to communicate, including sign language, or tactile sign language.

(f) “Translator” means a person qualified and capable of translating a language in writing or sign. A qualified translator has received education and training in translator best practices, including ethics, conduct, practice, and confidentiality. “Translation” is the replacement of a written text or sign, or recorded image, from one language (source language) into an equivalent written text or sign, or recorded image in another language (target language), accurately and with appropriate cultural relevance, and at the appropriate grade level. Although many of the same requirements apply to translators as for interpreters, the skill of translators is very different from that of interpreting. Competency of translations can often be ensured by: (i) having a second independent translator to check the work of the primary translator, including using a community review process to ensure the correct reading and literacy level and understandability of the document, and (ii) using “back translation” by having one translator translate the documents and a second one translate it back to English or the source language to check the appropriate meaning.

(c) discriminate against a person on the basis of such person’s membership in an organization identified with, or seeking to promote the interests of persons of a particular ancestry, ethnic group identification, or national origin, or because a person’s name, or that of their spouse, is believed to reflect a particular ancestry, ethnic group identification or national origin; or

(d) fail to take reasonable steps to ensure meaningful access to its programs and activities by LEP persons, including through the use of alternative communication services. The determination of whether a covered entity has failed to take reasonable steps to ensure meaningful access to its programs and activities by LEP persons is a case-specific, fact-based inquiry that must balance at least the following five factors:

(1) The number or proportion of LEP persons eligible to be served or likely to be encountered by the covered entity;

(2) The frequency with which LEP individuals come in contact with the program or activity;

(3) The nature and importance to people’s lives of the program or activity provided by the covered entity;

(4) The significance of the communication to an individual’s ability to access or be served by the program or activity; and

(5) The resources available to the covered entity.

§ 14331. Assistance Animals.

(a) Assistance animals include guide dogs, signal dogs, service dogs, service animals, and support animals as defined in section 14020(f).

(b) Individuals with disabilities are permitted to have service animals as defined in section 14020(f)(1) in all locations and facilities operated or controlled by covered entities. The only permissible questions that can be asked of an individual to determine if the animal is a service animal are: 1) "Are you an individual with a disability?" and 2) "What is the disability-related task the animal has been trained to perform?" It is not permitted to ask the individual with a disability to demonstrate the task.

(c) Individuals with disabilities who have a support animal as defined in section 14020(f)(2) may request a reasonable accommodation pursuant to section 14327 related to the individual's need for the support animal in all locations and facilities operated or controlled by covered entities. Requests may be denied if the animal creates an undue burden on the covered entity or constitutes a direct threat to others, as defined in section 14020(o) (definition of direct threat).

(d) Provisions applicable to all assistance animals as defined in section 14020(f) include:

(1) An individual with an assistance animal may also be covered by other legal obligations relating to assistance animals, such as the American with Disabilities Act, section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act, Civil Code sections 51, 54.1, 54.2. and 54.7, and the Fair Employment and Housing Act, which include additional requirements or prohibitions relating to assistance animals, and may further restrict the nature and type of inquiry that may be made concerning assistance animals;

(2) An individual with an assistance animal shall not be required to pay any pet fee or other additional fee, including additional security deposit or liability insurance, in connection with the assistance animal;

(3) An individual with an assistance animal may be required to cover the costs of repairs for damage the animal causes to the premises, excluding ordinary wear and tear;

(4) An individual may have more than one assistance animal. Each animal must be individually determined to meet the requirements in this article. When an individual already has a support animal as a reasonable accommodation and requests an additional support animal as a reasonable accommodation, the person considering the subsequent request may consider whether the cumulative impact of multiple animals constitutes an undue burden or fundamental alteration;

(5) No breed, size, and weight limitations may be applied to an assistance animal (other than specific restrictions relating to miniature horses as service animals under the Americans with Disabilities Act);

(6) Reasonable conditions may be imposed on the use of an assistance animal to ensure it is under the control of the individual with a disability or an individual who may be assisting the individual with a disability, such as restrictions on waste disposal and animal behavior that may constitute a nuisance, so long as the conditions do not interfere with the normal performance of the animal's duties. For example, a leash requirement may interfere with the ability of a guide dog, signal dog, or service dog to assist an individual, in which case the animal may be under voice control or otherwise responsive. Similarly, a "no noise" requirement may interfere with a dog's job of barking to alert a blind individual to a danger or, but incessant barking may violate reasonable restrictions relating to nuisance. Any such conditions may not be more restrictive than those imposed upon other animals on the property;

(7) Animal vests, identification cards, or certificates are not in and of themselves documentation of either disability or the need for a reasonable accommodation;

(8) If an individual with a disability is denied permission to have an assistance animal, the individual is still entitled to all the rights and privileges that otherwise would have been accorded the individual, so long as the individual no longer has the animal; and

(9) An assistance animal need not be allowed if the animal constitutes a direct threat to the health or safety of others (i.e. a significant risk of bodily harm), as defined in section 14020(o) (definition of direct threat), or would cause substantial physical damage to the property of others, and that harm cannot be sufficiently mitigated or eliminated by a reasonable accommodation, pursuant to section 14327, including under the following provisions:

(A) A determination that an assistance animal as defined in section 14020(f) poses a direct threat to the health or safety of others or would cause substantial physical damage to the property of others must be based on an individualized assessment that relies on objective evidence that is sufficiently recent as to be credible, about the specific animal’s actual conduct, not on mere speculation or fear about the types of harm or damage an animal may cause or on evidence about harm or damage that other animals have caused.

(B) The assessment of whether the assistance animal as defined in section 14020(f) poses a direct threat to the health or safety of others or would cause substantial physical damage to the property of others must consider:

(i) the nature, duration, and severity of the risk of a direct threat to the health or safety of others or of substantial physical damage to the property of others;

(ii) The probability that a direct threat to the health or safety of others or substantial physical damage to the property of others will actually occur; and

(iii) Whether there are any reasonable accommodations, pursuant to section 14327, that will eliminate the direct threat to the health or safety of others or substantial physical damage to the property of others, or sufficiently mitigate or eliminate the problems creating the direct threat.

(C) Relevant evidence in determining whether an assistance animal as defined in section 14020(f) imposes a direct threat includes whether there is evidence that the animal in question is currently engaging in dangerous conduct or has a recent history of overt dangerous acts, as described under Food & Agric. Code section 31601 et seq. A dog that has been finally determined by a court of law to be “potentially dangerous dog” or “vicious dog” pursuant to Food & Agric. Code section 31601 et seq. shall presumptively be considered to pose a direct threat to the health or safety of others.

(a) It is a prohibited practice for a covered entity to fail to take appropriate steps to ensure that communications with individuals with disabilities and their companions, including applicants to or participants in programs and activities, members of the public, and ultimate beneficiaries are as effective as communications with others. Covered entities shall give priority to the expressed preference for the method of communication requested by an individual with a disability.

(b) For purposes of this article, individuals with disabilities include persons with developmental, mental health, or intellectual disabilities who have limited ability to understand English; and persons with manual or sensory disabilities, such as manual dexterity impairments, hearing or vision impairments, who have limited functional ability to read, write, or speak English presented in standard visual or oral formats.
